

a 2023 calendar

generated using 365 lines of code

i'm back this year with my silly little calendar, hoping to live through another silly little year!

// love & warmth, hetvi

<https://cosmicbhejafry.github.io>

vuisnotabot

cosmicbhejafry

calendars make me feel the pressure of time passing by, so i wanted to do something more playful...

...this year's calendar is a little different.

i was listening to shape of my heart by sting when i got the idea. it uses playing cards as a metaphor - basically genius anyway, 'the sacred geometry of chance' inspired me and my brain went - a year also has 52 weeks right? let's make a card deck for the year that we can shuffle through anytime!

and i 'sat' with this idea for a long time, even considered abandoning it. but funnily enough something i 'sat' on inspired me!

how? i moved to london and that's basically my whole personality now lmao so the 4 suits of the deck & the algorithms that generate their backgrounds are inspired by seat patterns from moquettes that adorn london public transport :)

(brownie points for guessing which background corresponds to which tube lines)

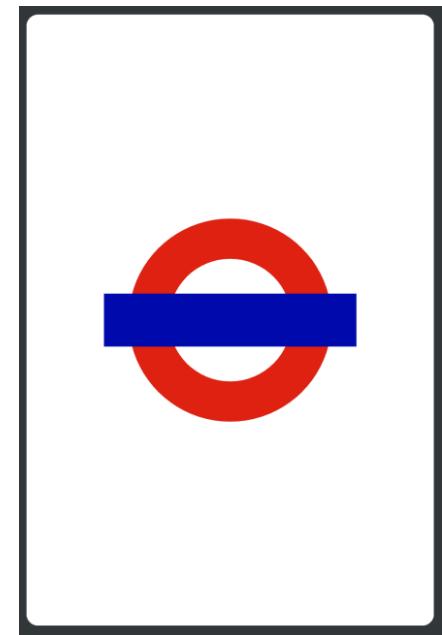

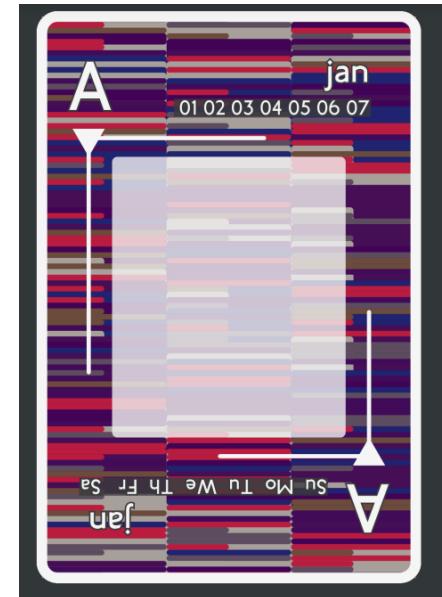

here is the reimagined calendar:

the front of each card in the deck corresponds to a week of 2023 & has some space for you.

you can use the whitespace to do whatever you want.
i suggest using it as a small weekly journalling space.

i'm planning to doodle in it weekly, so that i have a deck of doodles to look back upon. let me know what you end up doing with it too! :)

well, the back's there because...playing cards...it's just the underground logo. hope tfl doesn't sue me lol

before the rant ends,

i'm nobody to say this but i'll say it any way- remember to use your cards with love, care, and intention and i hope you have a fun 2023! <3 also pls send me pictures if you print them out and assemble the deck

